Introduction

Yale University is committed to cultivating a culture of respect and inclusion, one in which individual and institutional aspirations can be fully realized—and one in which sexual misconduct has no place. In recent years the University has greatly expanded its initiatives to address and prevent sexual misconduct, initiatives that have benefitted immeasurably from strong and growing community engagement. One such initiative has been the semi-annual publication, beginning in January 2012, of reports of complaints of sexual misconduct brought to the University's attention.

This report, through both its descriptive and statistical summaries, is intended to inform the community about the types of complaints that come to the University's attention and to raise awareness about the procedures and resources available to address those complaints. Past reports have also served as means to stimulate community conversation about our campus culture and to encourage community engagement in developing and implementing ways to prevent sexual misconduct at Yale. While they are important sources of general information, the reports are not intended to create a venue for public discussion about specific complaints and are designed to protect the privacy of the individuals whose very real experiences are reflected in the statistics and complaint summaries.

The current report presents information about 124 complaints of sexual misconduct that were brought to the attention of Title IX coordinators, the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct, and the Yale Police Department between July 1, 2017 and December 31, 2017. It also provides updates on 5 complaints that were first presented in previous reports. The number of complaints brought forward during this reporting period is notably large relative to previous reporting periods. While it is impossible to know with certainty the reasons for this increase, it is conceivable that heightened national attention to the issue of sexual misconduct has encouraged individuals to come forward to share their own experiences at Yale. Indeed, during the past few months in particular, we have heard from a number of former members of the Yale community about behaviors they experienced in the past while at Yale, and, in these cases, we have made our support resources and our complaint procedures, where relevant, available to them. At the same time we have also seen a relative increase in complaints brought forward by current members of our community. We hope that the overall increase reflects not only the greater national attention to this issue but also a growing awareness of and comfort with our procedures and resources.

As we look forward, we must continue to work together as a community to ensure that we maintain effective and accessible complaint procedures and support resources and that we pursue meaningful prevention initiatives. As campus conversation expands and deepens, we continue to identify opportunities to clarify aspects of our policies and procedures, and are working with our student advisory boards and others to revise our website and educational materials to include relevant clarifications. Later this spring we will launch a foundational on-line training available to students, faculty and staff. With the help of faculty and staff leaders, we are working to further develop our already popular graduate and professional student bystander intervention workshops (over 2000 participants to date) to be more relevant to specific departments and broader constituencies. And, to better understand underlying trends and the impacts of our efforts on individuals' experiences, we plan to conduct the AAU Sexual Climate Survey once again in the Spring of 2019.

In closing, I must once again thank the many members of the Yale community who contribute to our efforts to eliminate sexual misconduct and ensure that our campus is a safe and respectful place. And, as always, I welcome your questions and suggestions regarding this report and the University's programs. You may reach me at titleix@yale.edu or by contacting my office at 203-432-6854.

Guide to this Report

This report includes both statistical and descriptive summaries of the complaints brought forward within this reporting period (July 1 – December 31, 2017) which are organized according to the office or committee that addressed the complaint most recently and/or definitively: the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC), the Title IX coordinators, and the Yale Police Department (YPD).

The statistical summaries present the complaints by complainant affiliation, by respondent affiliation, by gender configuration, and lastly by the venue through which the complaint was primarily addressed. Throughout the narrative portion of the report you will find cases that engaged more than one of these venues, showing the close coordination of the UWC, the Title IX coordinators, and the YPD in working with complainants to find the venues that will best meet their needs.

While intended to be broadly informative, the report does have limitations. Because of privacy obligations, the report cannot fully convey the variety and complexity of circumstances associated with cases that may appear similar in the brief narrative descriptions. Likewise, the report assigns complaints to general categories such as "sexual assault" and "sexual harassment" that encompass broad ranges of behavior. We have embedded links to key definitions and terminology in the report (which also appear at the end of this report), so that readers can understand what behaviors may be included in any category. We have also included links to Frequently Asked Questions and to hypothetical case scenarios, which illustrate Yale's definition of consent. Readers can find comprehensive information about Yale's policies, definitions and procedures in the guide "Preventing and Responding to Sexual Misconduct: Building a Climate of Safety and Respect at Yale."

Statistical Summary of Complaintsⁱ

The statistics below include all complaints of sexual misconduct brought forward within this reporting period (July 1 – December 31, 2017), regardless of when the alleged events occurred. To avoid duplication, the tables below do not include complaints presented as updates in this report since these complaints were already included in the statistical summaries of previous reports (information about the updates to these complaints can be found on pages 6 and 14 of this report).

The complaints of sexual misconduct are sorted in broad categories (e.g., sexual assault, intimate partner violence, sexual harassment) based on the complainant’s allegations. Complaints involving more than one allegation of sexual misconduct are listed only once. The complainant is the person who reported having experienced misconduct, or, in the case of third-party complaints, the person who is reported to have experienced it. The respondent is the person (or persons) alleged to have committed the misconduct.

In providing a range of formal and informal options for pursuing complaints, the University seeks to meet the varied needs of potential complainants. Given the violating nature of sexual misconduct, it is important that those who have experienced it retain as much control as possible over the actions taken in response. Accordingly, whenever possible, it is the complainant who decides whether or not to pursue a complaint, and in what venue. In certain unusual circumstances, such as those involving risks to the safety of individuals and/or the community, the University will bring matters to a formal hearing independently of the wishes of an individual complainant. The choice of an informal process does not imply the matter is less serious than those matters pursued through formal processes, nor does it preclude the complainant from choosing to bring a formal complaint at a later date.

Descriptive Summaries of Complaints

The descriptive summaries of complaints are organized in tables below according to the office or committee that reviewed and addressed the complaints, i.e., the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC), the Title IX coordinators, and the Yale Police Department (YPD).

Although a complaint may be brought to multiple venues, each complaint is described only once in this report, based on which venue primarily addressed the complaint. The UWC, Title IX coordinators and YPD routinely collaborate and coordinate their activities to ensure that complaints are resolved promptly and equitably. All reports of sexual misconduct brought to the YPD, for example, are reviewed by the University Title IX Coordinator; similarly, all reports of possible criminal activity brought to the Title IX coordinators (including those reported via the UWC) are shared with the YPD.

University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct: Formal Complaints

The following complaints were pursued through formal resolution with the UWC. In every case, the complainant was provided information about all options for pursuing complaints – including formal, informal, and criminal processes – as well as information about support resources such as the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response & Education Center (SHARE). See the UWC Procedures for more information.ⁱⁱ Also see page 19 of this report for an explanation of commonly-used terminology.

During this reporting period (July 1 – December 31, 2017), there was 1 new complaint brought forward to the UWC, and 1 updated complaint, which are reported in this table.

Complainant	Respondent	Category of Misconduct Reported	Description/Actions Taken
Yale College Student	Yale College Student	Sexual assault	A YC student alleged that another YC student engaged in groping. A second YC complainant, who had previously pursued informal resolution, brought a formal complaint alleging that the same respondent engaged in sexual harassment and groping. The UWC found sufficient evidence to support the allegations. The respondent was suspended for two terms.

ⁱⁱ Based on feedback from the University community, the UWC procedures were clarified in October 2015 to reflect the UWC’s practice of consulting with a Title IX Coordinator to resolve informal complaints. As a result, all informal complaints are presented in this report in the Title IX Coordinator section.

Questions? See the Title IX FAQs and Sexual Misconduct Scenarios for more information.

Title IX Coordinators

The following complaints were brought forward to either the University Title IX Coordinator or a Deputy Title IX coordinator (any of whom are referred to here as “Title IX coordinator”). The Title IX coordinators do not conduct formal hearings. However, depending on the affiliation of the parties, they may investigate complaints to the degree possible and work with the complainant, the respondent, and, where appropriate, the respondent’s supervisor to achieve a resolution of the complaint, which may include sanctions for respondents who are staff members and remedies and ongoing accommodations for the complainant. They may also put in place measures to support and protect the complainant. In making their determinations and recommendations, the Title IX coordinators strive to comply with the complainant’s wishes for resolution while ensuring that the University provides a safe and nondiscriminatory environment for all members of the Yale community. See the Title IX website for more information. Also see page 19 of this report for an exploration of commonly-used terminology.

During this reporting period (July 1 – December 31, 2017), there were 107 cases brought forward to a Title IX coordinator. In addition, below are updates to complaints that were reported as pending in a previous report.

SECTION I.

While the specific actions may vary from case to case, Title IX coordinators respond to complaints by addressing any immediate concerns a complainant may have, connecting complainants and respondents with appropriate resources, ensuring that complainants are fully aware of the options available for further action, and helping to facilitate those actions.

In the following complaints, the complainant chose to pursue a resolution of the complaint with a Title IX coordinator. In some cases, the complainant requested that the Title IX coordinator facilitate accommodations or other actions. In other cases, the coordinator identified measures that might be taken (e.g., departmental training, academic/workplace accommodations) without revealing to the respondent that a report has been made and consulted with the complainant prior to implementing these measures. In these cases, the complainant was informed that no direct action can be taken against a respondent without providing notice of the complaint to the respondent. In every case, the complainant was provided information about all options for pursuing complaints – including formal, informal, and criminal processes – as well as information about support resources such as the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response & Education (SHARE) Center.

SECTION II.

In some cases, after consulting with a Title IX coordinator regarding all options for pursuing complaints – including formal, informal, and criminal processes – and receiving information about support resources such as the Sexual Harassment and Assault Response & Education (SHARE) Center, the complainant decides not to pursue the complaint any further and requests that no action be taken by the coordinator. In these cases, the Title IX coordinator will inform the complainant that a complaint can be pursued at a later time and will follow up with the complainant to check on the complainant’s wellbeing. Except in cases of acute threat of harm to the complainant or to the campus community, the Title IX coordinator will not take any action without the complainant’s agreement.

The following table provides a statistical summary of those complaints where the complainant chose not to pursue the complaint and the coordinator took no further action. The complainants involved always have the option to pursue further action, in which case descriptive updates will be provided in future reports.

SECTION III.

In some cases, information about incidents of sexual misconduct comes to a Title IX coordinator from a third party, such as an administrator, a friend of those involved, or a witness. When possible, the coordinator will reach out to the potential complainant to offer support and to discuss resources and options. In many cases, the identities of one or both parties are not provided. Some complainants choose not to engage in further discussion with the coordinator or provide any additional information. The coordinator may explore whether there are any measures that might be taken without involving the complainant or revealing to the respondent that a report has been made and will attempt to consult with the complainant prior to taking any action. Except in cases of acute threat of harm to the complainant or to the campus community, the Title IX coordinator will not take any action without the complainant's agreement.

The following table provides a statistical summary of those complaints where the complainant chose not to engage with the Title IX coordinator and the coordinator took no further action. Yale Police Department

The following are cases in which the complainant chose to contact the Yale Police Department (YPD), which addressed each case according to its procedures (see the Yale Police website for more information). All reports of possible sexual misconduct made to the YPD are reviewed by the University Title IX Coordinator. See page 19 of this report for an explanation of commonly-used terminology.

The remaining were referred to the UWC or a Title IX Coordinator for further investigation and resolution and are thus described above.

Brief Definitions

The following are definitions for the specific terms Yale uses in this Report to categorize the behaviors that would constitute sexual misconduct under Yale's policies. For more information on Yale's sexual misconduct policies and definitions, go to the Sexual Misconduct Response website.

Sexual assault is any kind of nonconsensual sexual contact, including rape, groping, sexual penetration (which is the insertion of a penis, finger or object into another person's vagina or anus), or any other nonconsensual sexual touching.ⁱⁱⁱ

Sexual activity requires affirmative consent, which is defined as positive, unambiguous, and voluntary agreement to engage in specific sexual activity throughout a sexual encounter. Consent cannot be inferred from the absence of a "no"; a clear "yes," verbal or otherwise, is necessary. Consent to some sexual acts does not constitute consent to others, nor does past consent to a given act constitute present or future consent. Consent must be ongoing throughout a sexual encounter and can be revoked at any time.

Consent cannot be obtained by threat, coercion, or force. Agreement under such circumstances does not constitute consent.

Consent cannot be obtained from someone who is asleep or otherwise mentally or physically incapacitated, whether due to alcohol, drugs, or some other condition. A person is mentally or physically incapacitated when that person lacks the ability to make or act on considered decisions to engage in sexual activity.

Engaging in sexual activity with a person whom you know -- or reasonably should know -- to be incapacitated constitutes sexual misconduct. For illustrations of Yale's consent definition, see the Sexual Misconduct Scenarios at <http://smr.yale.edu/>.

Intimate partner violence (IPV) occurs when a current or former intimate partner uses or threatens physical or sexual violence. IPV also may take the form of a pattern of behavior that seeks to establish power and control by causing fear of physical or sexual violence. Stalking may also constitute IPV.

ⁱⁱⁱ The sexual assault data in this report will not correspond to Yale's annual report required under the federal Clery Act because this report uses a more expansive definition of sexual assault and includes cases from a wider geographic jurisdiction than in the Clery report.

Questions? See the Title IX FAQs and Sexual Misconduct Scenarios for more information.

Sexual harassment consists of unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature on or off campus, when: (1) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a condition of an individual's employment or academic standing; or (2) submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment decisions or for academic evaluation, grades, or advancement; or (3) such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or academic performance or creating an intimidating or hostile academic or work environment. Sexual harassment may be found in a single episode, as well as in persistent behavior. All members of the community are protected from sexual harassment, and sexual harassment is prohibited regardless of the sex or gender of the harasser.

Stalking is repeated or obsessive unwanted attention directed toward an individual or group that is likely to cause alarm, fear, or substantial emotional distress. Stalking may take many forms, including following, lying in wait, monitoring, and pursuing contact. Stalking may occur in person or through a medium of communication, such as letters, e-mail, text messages, or telephone calls. In some circumstances, two instances of such behavior may be sufficient to constitute stalking.

Other includes a range of prohibited behaviors that do not fall into the categories above. Examples include voyeurism, audio-visual recording of sexual activity without consent, retaliation, and violations of the Policy on Teacher-Student Consensual Relations.

Terminology Commonly Used in this Report

“UWC formal complaint”: Formal resolution of a complaint through the UWC involves an investigation by an external fact-finder, a hearing, adjudication, and possible disciplinary sanctions. See the UWC Procedures for more information.

“A Title IX Coordinator brought a formal complaint...”: Under certain circumstances, the Title IX Coordinator of the University or any Yale school may bring a complaint to the UWC. Generally, a Title IX Coordinator may file a complaint in situations on behalf of someone who experienced sexual misconduct but who cannot or will not themselves take the formal role of a complainant; this may be an issue of jurisdiction, safety, or preference. In certain circumstances involving a serious threat to the University community, a Title IX coordinator may bring a complaint to the UWC when there is evidence that the University’s policy on sexual misconduct has been violated and the Title IX Coordinator’s intervention is needed to ensure that the matter reaches the UWC. See the UWC procedures for more information.

“The Title IX Coordinator investigated...”: An investigation by a Title IX Coordinator generally includes, but is not limited to: interviewing the complaint and respondent, interviewing any witnesses or other parties with knowledge of the alleged conduct, and collecting documentation (including email or other communications) relevant to the complaint. Upon reviewing the evidence gathered, The Title IX Coordinator determines whether a violation of University policy occurred, whether any actions should be taken, and recommends disciplinary action, if warranted.

“Sufficient evidence to support the allegations”: The UWC and the Title IX Coordinators apply the “preponderance of the evidence” standard (i.e., it is more likely than not) to determine, based on the evidence gathered during the investigation, whether the alleged conduct occurred and, if so, whether it violates any University policies.

“The respondent was counseled on appropriate conduct”: In some cases, the Chair of the UWC, the Title IX

Coordinator, or an administrator working in consultation with the Title IX Coordinator, will meet with the respondent to review the allegations and the University's definitions and policies, discuss and affirm expected behaviors, and warn the respondent about possible consequences for violations of the University sexual misconduct policies.

“Imposed no-contact restrictions”: In most cases, the respondent is issued a warning to cease all forms of contact (including physical, verbal, and electronic) with the complainant. In some cases, contact restrictions may limit access to any or certain parts of campus.

“Provided the complainant with information on safety and victim services”: The YPD has a Sensitive Crimes & Support Coordinator who assists those affected by sexual misconduct and can help complainants make contact with SHARE or other University offices, coordinate interim safety measures, provide safety planning, and serve as a liaison with victims' assistance services. See the YPD website for more information.

“The case is pending”: In the case of a formal complaint under review by the UWC, “pending” means that the review of the complaint is still in process and the result will not be reported until a final decision on the complaint has been issued. In the case of a complaint brought to a Title IX coordinator, “pending” means that the resolution of the complaint is still in process, e.g., the Title IX coordinator and the complainant are still evaluating options.
